Supply Chain Toolworks and ScheduleSoft workforce scheduling team up to help manufacturers become more agile

San Francisco, CA and Madison, WI Dec. 7, 2010 –Supply Chain Toolworks (SCTW), a leader in operations strategy planning, is partnering with ScheduleSoft workforce scheduling to enhance their ability to provide customers with the tools necessary to execute their operations and strategy planning. The two companies have formalized an agreement that will allow joint customers, primarily process manufacturers, to leverage the strengths of each company to achieve leaner, more agile manufacturing. The combination of SCTW's predictive modeling for operational planning and ScheduleSoft's ability to create an optimized, flexible workforce schedule, means manufacturers can better manage fluctuations in demand, improve product costs and move towards a continuous improvement model.

“We believe the three essential elements to supply chain success are strategic planning, strong analytics and disciplined execution,” said Stephen Johanson, CEO of SCTW.

“ScheduleSoft's unique ability to generate an optimized, flexible schedule makes them an ideal partner to help our demand-driven manufacturing clients manage variability in production.”

“Supply Chain Toolworks has an innovative solution and process that helps manufacturers increase operations cash flow,” said Gregory Flessas, ScheduleSoft CEO. “We also provide our customers with significant costs savings, specifically in the area of labor. Working together, we expect to help manufacturers increase profits and become more agile by helping them change how they plan their operations and execute their workforce scheduling.”
